DSHS AND DSMS DRUMLINES PLACE HIGH AT STATE CONTEST

DRIPPING SPRINGS, Texas—The Dripping Springs High School Drumline and the Dripping Springs Middle School Drumline had strong showings at the Texas Color Guard Circuit Percussion State Championships, held at Texas A&M University March 28.

The DSHS drumline's show, "Broadcast," placed second in the Scholastic Open class, finishing behind Clear Brook High School. Dripping Springs High School's show featured original compositions as well as the music of Radiohead and Imogen Heap. The drumline is under the guidance of Assistant Band Director/Percussion Coordinator Lance Brightwell.

Dripping Springs Middle School also entered an eighth-grade group in the Scholastic Concert A class and placed fourth overall. The show, "Bach with a Twist," was set to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach. DSMS was the highest-placing middle school group, finishing behind the Tomball Ensemble and Sam Rayburn and Clear Lake high schools.

Dripping Springs ISD's Director of Bands is Keith Lancaster.
