DRIPPING SPRINGS EDUCATION FOUNDATION NEWS

The Dripping Springs Education Foundation (DSEF) has a new Executive Director on board -- Lou Mandy Bruggman -- and a major event coming in October. Ms. Bruggman brings nine years of non-profit and fundraising experience to her new role. Most recently, she was the Vice President of Philanthropy and Director of Planned Giving with Boys & Girls Clubs of Central Wyoming where she was named as a national finalist for Resource Development Professional of the Year. She previously served as Volunteer Coordinator for the Voices of Children, Inc., and the Twin City Mission, both in Bryan, Texas.

A Texas native, Ms. Bruggman is a graduate of Texas A&M University where she earned a bachelor's degree in Communication, with a minor in Sociology.

DSEF will host the Ninth Annual Schoolhouse Scramble to raise money in support of DSISD teachers and students. The event will be held at Falconhead Golf Club, located in Bee Cave. The tournament includes lunch, a four-person, 18-hole scramble, and an awards ceremony with dinner. Registration begins at 11:30 a.m. and shotgun start is at 1:00 p.m. Organized by DSEF board members, the annual golf tournament helps raise funds to support Innovative Teaching and Student Leadership grants. Sponsorships are still available and teams can still be entered. Visit www.dseducationfoundation.org to learn more.
