

Sycamore Springs Middle School Trail to Resolution

The quickest way to resolve a concern is to communicate directly with the person involved in the situation where the concern arose. For example, if a student comes home and says to their parent that the teacher said something inappropriate to them, the first step for the parent is to contact the teacher. Once the parent has had a conversation with the teacher, the parent is either satisfied with the resolution proposed by the teacher, or continues to the teacher's immediate supervisor to resolve the issue.
